

MY MENTOR

World Aids Day with Khulisane Academy

Transforming the Response

"We are on the verge of a significant breakthrough in the AIDS response. The vision of a world with zero new HIV infections, zero discrimination, and zero AIDS-related deaths has captured the imagination of diverse partners, stakeholders and people living with and affected by HIV.

Just a few years ago, talking about ending the AIDS epidemic in the near term seemed impossible, but science, political support and community responses are starting to deliver clear and tangible results.

Yet, to be effective, the AIDS response must be transformed. We need to move from a short-term, piecemeal approach to a long-term strategic response with matching investment" – UNAIDS World AIDS Day Report 2011 (Michel Sidibe', UNAIDS Executive Director – Under Secretary-General of the United Nations)

Khulisane Academy cares for ALL communities. It is therefore important for us to play a significant role in the transforming of the AIDS response. We must ALL be part of projects that is bringing solutions to our doorstep.

On 01 December 2011, we presented and sponsored a HIV / AIDS Awareness Training Programme to all the delegates on one of our learnerships. This was for the New Venture Creation 2011 Group at Corobrik – something extra that was very useful and uplifting. They were spoiled with T-shirts, a nice lunch and with very useful Learning Material. We also want to thank the following delegates that attended the Training Programme : Hajira Habib – Transpaco (Pty) Ltd, Thabiso Mashabela – Driving Sense and Themba Mahlangu / Siphso Zembe – Ubuntu (Pty) Ltd.

Delegates on the New Venture Creation Learnership, with their Facilitator Margaret Mhlongo, for the HIV / AIDS Awareness Training Programme. Also included : delegates from Transpaco (Pty)Ltd, Driving Sense and Ubuntu (Pty) Ltd that attended the Training

Are we ALL doing enough to contribute something positive to the situation ? Let us ALL help to transform the AIDS response !!!

Blade: FET colleges must become students' top choice

PRETORIA, SOUTH AFRICA - Jan 12 2012 12:47

(Article : Mail & Guardian Online)

Blade Nzimande says the focus of higher education in SA will shift from universities to FET colleges, which must be overhauled and linked to workplace demands.

In a green paper released in Pretoria on Thursday, Nzimande, the minister of higher education and training, envisages that more than 4.5-million students a year will be enrolled in universities, colleges and other post-school institutions.

According to the green paper university enrolment needs to be increased from annual enrolment of almost 900 000 at 23 universities in 2011 to 1.5-million in 2030, but the focus of higher education will henceforth be on Further Education and Training (FET) colleges.

The government aimed to have four million people enrolled at colleges or other tertiary institutions by 2030.

"The key area of focus for expansion must be the public further education and training college sector. Strengthening and then expanding the colleges will play a central role in building a larger and more vibrant college sector."

Technical colleges merged

There are 50 multi-campus FET colleges around the country, which were formed by the merger of 152 technical colleges.

According to the green paper, the FET colleges had to become the institution of choice for school-leavers.

The problem with these institutions at the moment was that they lacked any real connection to the workplace.

"They must develop close ties to workplaces in the public and private sectors, becoming responsive to the needs of the employers in their surrounding communities, and offering tailor-made programmes where possible, in addition to their core programmes."

According to the paper, "one factor which has played a role in preventing the strengthening of the college sector has been regular changes in their mandate".

Universities 'unable to fulfil expectations'

In terms of quality, the universities were the strongest and most stable component of the tertiary education sector, but some of the universities were still beset "by serious problems and are unable to fulfil our peoples' expectations".

Among the issues highlighted were racism and transformation, which Nzimande planned to tackle by forming "a permanent oversight committee" that would submit an annual report to him.

The public has until April 30 to comment on the green paper. -- Sapa
